Preventive medicine helps to keep your puppy healthier, prevent disease, and detect illness earlier for best treatment.

Congratulations on your new addition! Wellness Plans assist you in helping your pet live a healthy life while you financially manage the costs associated with their care. Give your puppy the best start with this comprehensive plan!

Your puppy is examined by a veterinarian or Registered Veterinary Technician at each vaccination appointment. Our examinations with the veterinarian include a thorough nose to tail examination and time for discussion.

Vaccinations protect against harmful, and even fatal, infectious diseases. Vaccines are based on the lifestyle of your puppy and our plans cover the most common vaccines. A split-vaccine protocol (spreading out the vaccinations instead of giving several at once) is included.

Puppies are often born with intestinal parasites that were passed on from the mother, and some parasites are a concern to human health. All puppies should be on a deworming schedule.

Blood tests are essential tools for identifying diseases as early as possible, when they are most treatable. Your puppy could appear healthy but still have underlying health problems.

Monthly prevention products help protect your puppy from major complications including, but not limited to: flea infestations, Lyme disease, Heartworm, and intestinal parasite infections.
